Interfaith Shelter Update

By Ken B.

On May 31st, the Beaches Branch of the Interfaith Shelter Network held the final wrap-up meeting for the 2015-2016 shelter season. This past season, twenty-seven people were sheltered for more than 1,300 nights, and over 3,950 meals were served in our branch area. The Interfaith Shelter Network extends their gratitude and thanks to all the volunteers who have made this shelter season in the Beaches Branch a success. Over the Interfaith Shelter Network's thirty years, a total of more than 8,900 people have been sheltered, over 220,000 of them without having to build shelters or hire staff, thanks to the many congregations, their members, and friends.

The wrap-up meeting provided an opportunity to meet with our other Beach Branch congregations to share successes, discuss "what went well" moments, and to get updates on some of our previous shelter guests. There are many unseen dangers involved with living on the streets. Although during the past 30 years more than 50% of our sheltered guests have left the program to live in their own homes, others still deal with the challenges of homelessness. This past season one of our families was able to get into the twelve month shelter program, and others were in the 90-day program at Cortez Hill.

Please keep in prayer some of our former guests as they still continue to deal with the challenges of homelessness. One husband and wife couple got into a low income housing unit. One of our guests, with help and services of the dental clinic, was able to have complete dental work done, resulting in raised self-esteem, leading the individual to seek employment. We are making a difference to all who come through our doors seeking services here.

The 2016-2017 Interfaith Shelter season is getting ready to start again, with upcoming training Saturday, September 17, 2016, from 9 AM to Noon at First United Methodist Church. If you are looking for an opportunity to increase your involvement, you should attend this meeting.

PB UMC will serve as host during the 2016-2017 season, late January to early February. Exact dates will be confirmed within the next two months. Thanks again to all who volunteered and for your continued support

Also in September, the Interfaith Shelter Network will hold its 30th gala event, Celestial Nights. For our long standing involvement and work in our homeless ministries, PB UMC will be honored at this event. Celestial Nights is September 24, 2016. Proceeds from the Gala benefit the Interfaith Shelter Network. There are discounted tickets at $75; a table of eight costs $600. The regular price for the general public is $100. Please contact Ken B. if you would like to attend.

A New and Homegrown Christmas Musical

Hang on everybody! Hope A., long-time member of PB UMC, has written a beautiful and timely musical that we are producing for Christmas 2016. This lively show features The Baby Jesus, Santa Claus, St. Nicholas, Mrs. Claus, several reindeer, and a host of church folks in crisis over Global Climate Change! You may be asking, how does this unlikely cast of characters interact in a crisis of current events? Hope has woven a sweet story melding the legend of Saint Nicolas with the Christmas story. It's remarkably clever writing that will be beautifully staged in our Sanctuary on December 11. Start telling your friends now. This will be a great show filled with the joy of the Christmas; a great way to usher in the season.

Auditions:

Come join the fun. PB UMC proudly announces auditions for the Christmas Musical 2016. The play is titled Santa's Backup Plan. The read-through and auditions will be on Saturday, September 10th, at 10:00 am. Pastor Bob's Printed Blog

Dear friends...

As I take a moment for this newsletter article/blog post, we are in the middle of our sermon series on our Methodist history and tradition. If you are a part of this congregation and have not been able to join worship during this season, I invite you to visit our website at pbumc.org to find these sermons and give them a listen. You will hear about the Wesleys early home life and challenges, early education, the formation of the first Methodist group, failure and inspiration, and even John Wesley's determination to "be more vile." It is my hope that you might find them both instructive and inspiring.

My point in this is that the series is taking place over a twelve-week period. It is nearly three months long. It started just after Independence Day and it continues through Labor Day to the last weekend in September.

This takes planning, and I'm not a planner. I'm a firm advocate that the best way to make God laugh is to tell God your plans.

But let me quantify. It's not like I never make plans. I just don't very often make detailed plans. Details are hard for me. Figuring out the details is something that takes me quite a bit of time. It's not my strength. So to plan a twelve-week sermon series with titles and themes and scriptures and imagery ideas and visual aids and hymn suggestions..., that's hard for me.

And it was also wonderfully freeing.

I've taken to this new level of sermon planning – although let's be honest, I don't want to get ahead of myself by planning everything else – by creating a sermon calendar. So far I have sermons roughed in for the rest of this year and the first half of next year.

And it is wonderfully freeing.

One of the things I think I was afraid of when it came to this kind of planning was the possibility of being constrained and inflexible. Perhaps this is a real fear for many of us. And we live in a time when sometimes our culture demands that we be ultra-flexible; often we use the word "spontaneous." But spontaneous doesn't necessarily mean unprepared.

And so I have felt this kind of planning to be helpful rather than constricting. I have found that planning gives me guidance and support and still leaves room for creativity. And when I need to throw out an idea entirely and consider a new direction, that's great. I change the plan because that's ok too.

I know many of you are detailed planners in ways that I could never be, and many of you are not. Great! It is my hope that we can all see the value of some level of planning, even while leaving room for flexibility. I think it is a helpful and freeing thing. I hope you will too.

Now I am left with the next logical question: what should I plan next? I have some ideas, and I hope you do too. And I hope you include your faith community in your plans!

We have some exciting things coming in these next weeks and months. While it's been off the radar for a bit, we are still moving on the Labor of Love project. We have an upgrade coming to Hughes Hall to provide both for multimedia capability and also for a bit of environmental relief. We have our annual Stewardship campaign in October. We have upcoming Christmas musicals from our talented members and choir as well as from our amazing children. Our GriefShare group has begun meeting again. We have our annual Charge Conference in November. We are working to schedule our next Youth Sunday before the end of the year. We have service opportunities like Project Grace (our weekly meal on Wednesday evenings) and the Storefront Teen Shelter. We will worship together, celebrate together, work together, pledge together, pray together, learn together, make music together, be challenged and strengthened together, and – I hope – we will grow in love together.

Dear friends, I invite you to join me in making plans.

Pastor Bob

We Reach Out to Others

Summer Youth Experiences

By Devin R., age 12, Seventh Grade

This summer is the fourth year I got to go to Camp Cedar Glen. I love camp because I learn about God in so many ways. I got to meet new friends and even see the friends I saw in past years. I love going to camp because of all the games they have and the new things that are added for the camp to use. I get sad when I leave camp, but I always know I'll have a great time next year.

This was my first year to go to SSP. Dee took a group of us to Tsaille, Arizona. I loved SSP because I got to do work to help other people. I always think it is a way to interact with God and do something nice for others. Sometimes we got to play games after our work was done. I met new people every day when I was there. I miss SSP because I don't get to have as much fun when I leave. I plan to go on another SSP adventure next summer. Dee makes all of our experiences fun!

Thank You so much for providing these opportunities to have fun and do work for a great cause. Thank You so much.

New Ministry Opportunities

The Building Community Team has been working behind the scenes to create some new outreach and member services for our church family. It's time to go public with our plans!

Welcome Booth -- We have purchased a lovely popup shade covering which will enable us to set up a Welcome Booth on Sunday mornings where newcomers can receive information and a welcome gift. We would like some friendly greeters to staff the booth! Be the first to welcome visitors and welcome people back who have not been in worship with us for a while. The booth would be staffed before services, so you won't miss the pastor's message and the wonderful music.

Missing Member Outreach -- We also plan to reach out to members and friends who have not been with us for a few weeks to let them know they've been missed and ask if there is anything they need from their PB UMC community. This would be an ideal ministry opportunity for anyone who has time during the week to make phone calls from their own home. You'll get to talk with friends and share your concern for them while letting them know we miss their presence. If talking on the phone is outside of your comfort zone, we could also reach out by sending a notecard through the mail, or both.

Please see Dart R. (usually found downstairs in the nursery on Sundays!) or Heide T. if you would like to volunteer for these new opportunities. You can also reach Dart at dart_r@pbumc.org.

We Get Notes of Appreciation

"Thank you so much for your continued support of Storefront. It is largely due to generous donors like you that we are able to maintain this safe place for homeless, runaway, and exploited youth."

From The Reconciling Ministries Network

"Your support has brought us to strength now, as opportunity, changing minds, and the Bible itself call for action to bring justice and equality to our Church. . . . The generosity of Reconciling Communities like yours makes possible the lifesaving ministries of creating safe sanctuaries and just policies for people of all sexual orientations and gender identities."

September Communion Offering: Christian Education

Our offering in September will be in support of Christian education Sunday, which is a Special Sunday for ministries within our annual conference.

Christian Education Sunday calls the church as the people of God to be open to growth and learning as disciples of Jesus Christ. Christian education is not just for children! The hope is that you will continue God-inspired learning for the rest of your life.

This offering helps to strengthen programs in the United Methodist church that nurture religion.

Meet Hope Anderson From Our Voices of Praise

By Roving Reporter, Marcia M.

This month I got the opportunity to chat with Hope A. When I asked her how she found PB UMC, she told me she stopped going to a Methodist church in the 4th grade. Later, her husband Larry, who is Jewish, decided to become Christian. "So, even though I was an atheist, I decided if he was going to do that, I ought to check it out, too. We found a church, but it didn't work for both of us. So, we started on separate paths. Larry returned to the original church, and I started looking for a church near my Sunday morning yoga class. That's when I found PB UMC in 1997. I was made to feel very welcome, especially by Jim S. That was all it took, and I became a member in 1998. I feel like this is family and most of my social life. Larry is happy at his church, too."

Hope then told me how much the choir means to her. "When I joined the choir in 2000 I couldn't even read music. In fact, I could barely even sing. But, extremely accomplished musicians trained me. The choir is full of talented musicians. Now, theology comes to me through music. Rehearsals really mean a lot for that reason; each is a deep spiritual experience for me. We pray together every rehearsal and my faith has grown through the choir."

Recently at church Hope sang a song she wrote for a Christmas musical. I asked her about that and she told me, "Last year Ron J. couldn't find a suitable new Christmas musical, so we did a cantata instead." (A cantata is a medium-length narrative piece of music for voices with instrumental accompaniment.) "So, I thought about writing a musical. I used to write fiction and poetry and I found lots of ideas floating around in my brain. It was like a creative urge from God. The ideas were based on: What if Santa Claus had a conversation with the historical St. Nicholas? So, I enrolled in a play-writing class and wrote the original version of my play by December of last year. My professional musician brother told me I should write the music, too. I was comfortable writing the song lyrics as that was similar to fiction and poetry writing, but was surprised the music just flowed from me." She repeated her play writing class and reworked the story and then worked with others to refine it. She found software that created a score based on her singing the songs she wrote into it. Then she handed the score over to arranger Scott Stevens for orchestration. Her instructor has encouraged her to look into publishing her musical. Soon, we may all know a very famous musical writer and composer.

I am looking forward to enjoying her first musical.
